EXAGGERATED REPORTS.

Late this afternoon erroneous reports were in circulation respecting alleged outrages on American citizens in Italy. Careful inquiry fails to disclose more than two complaints of this character during the past six months.

In one case an American citizen in the habit of crossing the Piedmont boundary line was suspected of smuggling, and when he refused to sllow the Italian customs officers to search his carriage for contraband articles, he was arrested and made a bitter complaint. In the other case an Italian who returned from the United States was arrested for alleged brigandage in 1886. It appeared from the records that he had been included in an amnesty proclamation, so he was released.
